Bonneville Power Administration markets wholesale electrical power to utilities and industries throughout the Pacific Northwest. The agency owns and operates many miles of high voltage transmission lines, substations and related facilities. BPA also manages programs to protect, enhance, and mitigate fish and wildlife resources affected by the federal hydroelectric system. Although BPA is a federal agency, it purchases goods and services in a manner similar to other utility businesses.

This notice is not an "Invitation To Bid," but is for information purposes only. In the next 12 months, BPA expects to purchase a wide variety of goods and services to support the agency missions and operations. These goods and services are purchased by the supply change organization, and may include the following.

- Energy efficiency lighting or facility audit services
- IT hardware, software, & consulting services
- Management training & other consulting services
- Brush & danger tree cutting, thinning & removal
- Land appraisals
- Aerial photography
- Landscaping maintenance
- Facility maintenance service
- Engineering design services
- Transmission system construction services
- General construction services
- Substation electrical equipment
- Transmission line hardware
- Telecommunications/control equipment
- Building maintenance systems (i.e., HVAC)
